Love couple stickers

Image: Vestron Pictures Things were great in the '80s. Large hair, bold colors, and loud and synthesized music. Hair bands like Poison and Whitesnake were anger. The movies also made a splash. An unmissable series like "Back to the Future" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" came to the scene and enthralled us. Blockbusters like "The Empire Strikes Back" and "Return of the Jedi" were all on the screens of the cinema, taking off the breath. Brat Pack's films like "Sixteen Candles" and "The Breakfast Club" took the deception to a new level. And who could forget "ET"? The 1980s were also a time for couples of iconic films. The young love and his trials and tribulations were abundant in films such as "Say Any" and "Pretty in Pink". You had your "wrong side of the tracks" scenery and your rebel boy and preppy girl scenario, too. All in all until amp pairs you could not do without root for. Remember Buttercup and Wesley? They had adventure and death experiences almost—no one of them stopped them. Then you had Harry and Sally: it took 12 years to realize they were always looking. Just show us how great being in a relationship can be, but they are also a source of inspiration for many people. They fight each other when they need, they lose each other when they make mistakes, they risk their lives for each other and, above all, they love each other unconditionally. Among those romance couples, many of them come from the Disney universe. Some of the most popular couples include Aladdin and Jasmine from the film, Aladdin, Belle and Prince Adam from "Beauty and the Beast," Prince Naveen and Tianna from "The Princess and the Frog," Rapunzel and Flynn Rider from Tangled, Carl and Ellie from the film, Up, and Ariel and Eric from "The Little Mermaid". These are just some of the couples that first come to mind when thinking about relationships. More than half of the ever created Disney movies have couples, so there are many possibilities of who you and your significant other could be. The question now is, what better couple is you two? Take this quiz if you want to find out who it is!
