Apple’s newest operating system upgrade is expected to be released in September — and lots of iPhone users are eagerly anticipating its arrival. That being said, you might be curious about which iOS is on your iPhone right now — especially if you want to get a sense of just how much the iOS 13 upgrade will change your phone’s appearance and functionality. Thankfully, it’s pretty easy to figure out which version of iOS your phone is currently running.According to Apple Support’s website, to find out your phone’s current iOS, you simply need to open “settings.” You then click “general” and “about” and your version of iOS will be displayed where it says “software version.” Apple Support notes that you can also check to see if you have the latest version of iOS — or if a newer version is available — by clicking “settings,” then “general,” followed by “software update.” If there is a newer iOS version available, it will be displayed on your screen and you can choose to update immediately by hitting “download and install.” As Apple Support adds, you can also choose to toggle on automatic updates while you are in this window, which will help ensure that you always have the latest version of iOS running on your phone.OSXDaily, a website that reports Apple-related news, notes that while it’s not imperative to know which type of iOS your phone is running, it can be useful information. For example, the website suggests that knowing your iOS will help you identify all the available features your phone has and determine whether new apps are compatible with your phone, since apps usually indicate their iOS compatibility in their descriptions. Moreover, knowing your iOS could also be helpful if your phone is acting up or you’re having troubleshooting issues, the outlet added. Apple Support will likely want to know which iOS version your phone is using when trying to assist you.And, of course, knowing your phone’s current version of iOS will help you get a sense of just how much your iPhone experience might change when you upgrade to iOS 13. You can compare you current iOS to iOS 13 simply by googling both versions, which should bring up detailed Apple summary pages that highlight features for each iOS.iOS 13 is expected to have lots of new functions that are already generating significant buzz. According to Apple, these include extensive updates to the photos and maps applications, which are designed to create more personalized, user-friendly experiences. Moreover, iOS 13 will also allow users to employ “dark mode” on their phones, a design feature that “introduces a dramatic new look for iPhone” that is “designed to make every element on the screen easier on your eyes,” Apple says. Other major updates include security and privacy improvements and a new Siri voice, according to Apple.iOS 13 is expected to be released in September, according to CNET, though the exact release date is not yet known. In the meantime, you can research your phone’s current features by familiarizing yourself with its iOS — and then get excited about what’s to come in the next iteration of the operating system. It’s a good idea to keep your iPhone’s software (iOS) up to date. Updates are available for free from Apple. They apply the latest security and bug fixes and features to your iPhone. Here’s how to update your iPhone to the latest version of iOS. Back Up Before You Update While problems during the installation process are rare, it’s possible that something could go wrong, and cause you to lose your data. So, before you install an iOS update on a mission-critical iPhone (or one with irreplaceable data), make it a habit to perform a backup first. RELATED: How to Update Your iPad to the Latest Version of iPadOS Update iOS via the Settings App These days, most people update their iPhone directly on the device without connecting it to a computer. This is called a wireless installation, and here’s how you do it. First, launch the “Settings” app (the gear icon). By default, it’s on the first page of the Home screen. Use Apple’s Spotlight Search if you need help locating it. In the Settings menu, tap “General.” Next, tap “Software Update.” You see information about the latest update, including the version number and details about what the update will improve. If your iPhone hasn’t already downloaded the update, tap “Download and Install” and type your passcode if it’s requested. When the update is finished downloading, a message might pop up asking whether you want to install the update now or later; tap “Install Now.” After the install process begins, you see a message that says “Verifying Update”; wait for it to finish. After verification is complete, your iPhone’s screen goes black and it will restart. You then see the Apple logo and a small progress bar in the center of the screen. When installation is complete, you can unlock and use your iPhone again as usual. Update iOS in Finder or iTunes You can also update your iPhone via a wired connection with your Mac or Windows PC. On a Mac running macOS 10.15 or later, open Finder. On a Windows PC or Mac running macOS 10.14 or earlier, open iTunes. Connect your iPhone to your computer with a Lightning-to-USB cable. If it’s the first time you’ve connected your iPhone to the computer, tap “Trust” in the message that appears asking if you want iPhone to trust the computer. Locate your iPhone on your computer. In Finder, you see it on the left under “Locations”; click it. In iTunes, look for the small iPhone icon in the toolbar near the top; click it. In the window that appears with information on your iPhone, navigate to General (in Finder) or Settings > Summary (in iTunes). Click “Check for Update.” If an update is available, click “Download,” and after it does, click “Update.” Type your passcode if asked. The update installs, and then you’re ready to go. Double Check That Your iPhone’s Up to Date After your handset is done updating, you can check to make sure you have all the most current updates installed. On your iPhone, navigate to Settings > General > Software Update. If your device is fully updated, you see a screen similar to the one below letting you know your software is up to date. You’re iPhone is now updated and ready to go! Now it’s time to make sure that your iPad is up-to-date. instagram old version ios. instagram old version ios apk. instagram old version ios 10.3.3. instagram old version ios 9.3.5. instagram old version ios 7. instagram old version ios ipa. uptodown instagram old version ios. download instagram apk old version ios
