Whenever possible, it is better for the child to have frequent, continuous and meaningful contacts with both parents and other family members. To help achieve this, Missouri requires a parent plan whenever someone makes a petition for custody or visit. These plans help parents who do not live together to create an environment for their child or children that promotes their best interests. Parents' plans are detailed and comprehensive, focusing on four main sectors: Case and parental time Rights and decision-making Litigation Child's Missouri expenditure has a parental planning module to help you provide the necessary information for a plan. It is better if parents can process a plan together, but if not, each parent must present a plan. If parents cannot agree, the court will make decisions based on the plans presented. This article will give you a general overview of the information and decisions you will need to take in the development of your Missouri parental plan. Missouri Parenting Plans: The development of a parental plan is not a small matter. You will be asked to provide detailed information about how and when each parent will spend time with the child, as well as answer questions about how you will handle any issue in the future. There is a detailed form and statute that describes the information that will be necessary, but sometimes statutes can be confused, so we provided a summary in "English Lady"Help you. Statutes of the Missouri Revenue Statute, Chapter 452 (Presumption amount of child support) Custody and departure time Who will have the legal and physical custody of children? You will have to decide whether one or both parents have legal custody and/or physical custody. You can decide to share both types of custody or just share one. It is common for parents to share legal custody and grant only one physical custody of their parents. It is also possible that a parent has the only legal and physical custody, and the other parent has the right to visit. Legal benefits: the right to make decisions on health, education and well-being Physical benefits: the right to have specific periods of time with the child Where will children reside? The address of at least one of the parents must be designated as the address of children. 90 days notice is required before a parent or children can change their residence. What will be the time of parents for each parent? Include a full parents program that covers 24 hours on 24, 7 days on 7 for each parent. Design a start and end date and time for visits. How are the children taking and falling? Design the positions in which children will be abandoned or collected for every time of planned parents. Note any changes that must be made for when the school is not in session. If the exchange will happen in a place other than the residence of a parent, each parent will be at the place and time designated forexchange. The parent leaving the school is responsible for bringing children to the exchange. Consider whether other family members may collect or leave children (e.g. grandparents, aunts, uncles, etc.) Who will be responsible for the transport of children among parents? Decide who will be responsible for extraordinary transport costs. Decide who will transport children to every leg of the journey (for example, Mother is responsible for transport during the week and the Father is responsible for weekends and holidays. ) How are holidays and holidays managed? Decide who takes children for every holiday. Consider the beginning and end of time for holidays. Consider each other year or divide the holidays. Specify how to manage your holidays. What if I change the program? Parents should try to agree on any changes, but the parent who receives the request has the final determination. Design how the request for change must be made. Design how much notice is necessary for a change of request. Design when an answer to a request must be made. Parents must cooperate to allow children to meet school and social commitments. Can I need a telephone contact? Parents should children reasonable access to the phone during any visit to call the other parent. Design any restrictions that may be necessary (for example, do not call after 11:00 or before 18:00 hours). How will you handle any special needs? Note any special needs of the child (for example,or health conditions). Determine how supervised visits will be handled. Are there people with whom children should not have contact? Are there places that children should not be allowed to go? Rights and decision-making responsibilities Missouri has a strong public policy to encourage both parents to participate in decisions concerning their children, but sometimes it is better to have a parent responsible for certain things. You should consider each of the following areas regarding decision-making sharing, or if a parent is responsible: Dental medical selection of health care providers Selection of child care providers Extracurricular activities Arrangements of religious education on communication Make arrangements to ensure that they communicate on important topics, including: All school, sports or special activities for children. Address or phone number changes. Any communication from the court. Dispute resolution You should try to solve all issues with the other parent, but if you can't do so, consider a plan that will help you solve a dispute like: a pre-order agreement to mediate disputes from a designated advisor or broker. An agreement which the judge has the authority to resolve the question. Both parents are responsible for the support and expenses of their children. The judge will determine the amount of child support based on a variety of factors. However, it canother expenses requiring a particular consideration on who pays and what percentage. These charges may include: Medical Dental Psychological Medical Insurance cover Other childhood education expenses Other expenses (musical lessons, sports equipment, uniforms) Grandparents may be granted reasonable visiting rights (Section 452.402 ) Note: State laws are always subject to changes through the passage of new legislation, judgments in higher courts (including federal decisions), voting initiatives and other means.
