COMA (director/writer: Michael Crichton; screenwriter: based on Robin Cook's novel; cinematographer: Victor J. Kemper; editor: David Bretherton; music: Jerry Goldsmith; cast: Genevieve Bujold (Dr. Susan Wheeler,) Michael Douglas (Dr. Mark Bellows,) Elizabeth Ashley (Mrs. Emerson,) Rip Torn (Dr. George,) Richard Widmark (Dr. Harris,) Lois Chiles (Nancy Greenly,) Hari Rhodes (Dr. Morelind,) Tom Selleck (Sean Murphey,) Frank Down engineer 113; MPAA Rating: PG; producer: Martin Erlichman; Warner Home Video; 1978) "More fun than credible." Dennis Schwartz Review A Hitchcockian Suspense ski-fi thriller that gets the hospital environment to its most authentically disturbing and keeps things smart, mostly, which is until its exciting climax plays as more fun than credible. Although the crazy-scientist thriller degenerates into stupidity, it is even higher than most thrillers. Director Michael Crichton ("Westworld"/"Looker"/"Runaway") is based on Robin Cook's best-selling novel. Crichton like Cook has a medical background and is also a novelist. Feisty Susan Wheeler (Genevieve Bujold) is a surgical resident at Boston Memorial Hospital. He lives with Dr. Mark Bellows (Michael Douglas) an ambitious surgeon who is interested in hospital policy and is fucking to be head resident. When Susan 28 years old married the best friend Nancy Greenly(cle) undergoes a routine abortion but emerges inexplicably in an irreversible coma, Susan becomes nancy drawing and begins an investigation that upsets the top administrators of the hospital. rattles the illustrious dr. george (rip turns,) the chief anesthesiologist, who feels despised suspect incompetence in his department and reports his roughness in questioning him beyond the ten deaths of coma so unexplained over a year at Dr. george harris (richard widmark,) the head of surgery. the advance harris is not satisfied with his snooping and orders susan to see the shrink of the hospital (hari rhodes) before returning to service. At the end, Susan discovers through a paper trail a bond with the dead, now 12, all happen in the same operating room and the victims of the coma then be sent to the mysterious jefferson institute. It seems that patients are killed on the operating table with carbon monoxide nourished in an aesthetically by the basement and that the jefferson institute is selling their organs on the international black market to the highest bidder. The film breaks only in brawn over the brain when susan is the woman-in-peril who has to solve the mystery alone, as her boyfriend does not buy her story (by attributing it to the female hysteria,) and she becomes a marked woman who tries to avoid being eliminated by a Stalker killer sent by doctors in the hospital responsible for the criminal scheme of luxuriant. It's a female film,Susan shows that she is not afraid to take the old chain of command of the hospital. The film is simply excellent when playing mental games with the viewer exposing the fear that many people have of surgery, fear of dying as the doctor cuts them, and their phobias about the hospitals. has several disturbing scenes, equal to those seen in the best horror photos, which should get your attention; in particular, that of files of patients in comatose suspended from wires in a cold storage. the film was a shophorse and helped advance the careers of its younger cast members as Michael Douglas and Tom Saddle (they had a bit of a part as a coma vic,) who went on superstardom. When a young doctor notes an unnatural amount of coma occurring in his hospital, he discovers a terrible conspiracy. Plot Warning: This text contains details about the plot / end of the film. Dr. Susan Wheeler is a resident at Boston Memorial Hospital. She's devastated when a healthy patient, Nancy Greenly, who also seems to be her best friend, pronounces dead brain and comatosis there after being treated in the hospital. Later he becomes suspicious, when another young and still healthy patient, Sean Murphy, also falls comatose during knee surgery for a recent sports injury. Therefore it begins to investigate and discover, that during the previous year an unusual number of others in form, young people have suffered the same fate. He also discovers that they were all treated in the same operating room, OR-8, all were fabric type and all bodies of comatosis were subsequently moved into a remote facility called the Jefferson Institute. Over time, he's facing increasing pressure in the hospital to stop the investigation to the extent that he can't even trust his boyfriend, Dr. Mark Bellows, more. He also becomes a victim of attempted murder. Also, someone who wanted to tell you the truth about his investigation is murdered. Finally he discovers that they were all poisoned with CO through a conduit atof OR-8, which then enters there and that, to some extent, can deceive doctors, because it is colorless, so that they can all fall into a coma in this way and brought to the Jefferson Institute, where they are killed by people there to remove the organs from them and sell them for big money. He finally wants to inform the head of the hospital, Dr. George Harris about what he found. Too late he discovers that he is the master of everything, including pressure against her. He sees these actions as a necessity in the name of the greater good and sees people as themselves have the right to do such things in the name of a society that has to face such issues. While he told him, he poisoned her to make her look sick, so she can be operated in the same room, where the others were killed. His boyfriend, however, who was about to assist him, realizes over time the evil game due to the insistence of the doctor who should be operated there, since she also told him before and, in the nick of time, saves her by cutting the CO-conduit. Afterwards, he calls the police, arrests the doctor, taking Susan to security. Cast Geneviève Bujold as Dr. Susan Wheeler Michael Douglas as Dr. Mark Bellows Richard Widmark as Dr. George Harris Elizabeth Ashley as Nurse Emerson Rip Torn as Dr. George Lois Chiles as Nancy Greenly Hari Rhodes as Dr. Morelindl Richard Doyle as Jim Tom Selleck as SeanLance LeGault as Vince Esterno link The content of the Community is available under CC-BY-SA, unless otherwise indicated. noticed.
