Blaze grinder with spawner

Hey all, on my world I recently got myself a gravity gun and used it to grab a blaze spawner from the nether and I placed it in a room about 5 blocks high, the spawner being in the very center of the room and water all around and a hopper in the middle for catching blaze rods. The spawner works, blazes spawn and die by the water but whats not working is the blazes dropping blaze rods unless killed by a player. I know Direwolf did something very similar to this except he used a spawner made with Soul Shards. My question is.. Is there a config that allows one to enable blazes dropping items without the player killing them or will I have to use a spawner from Soul Shards mod to make this automatic? Thanks. My favorite for a blaze farm (if you don't mind putting in a little power) is hooking up a MineFactoryReloaded Grinder. You get the drops, plus handy mob essence for your enchanting needs. I have set up a blaze farm on several single player and Multiplayer worlds. I typically use soul shards and farm them, but that only pertains to getting them to spawn. If you have spawner that is successfully loading blazes in your overworld then the water cage will work. If you are looking to only collect rods and not exp you do not need a player entity (yourself/turtle) to kill them water will work fine. Set your room up where all the water filters to either a central collection point or to one side. If you want to grind exp off it you will need to kill them yourself or set up some melee turtles. The problems you may be experiencing could be due to a few things. One blazes don't always drop a rod when they die. So using a vanilla spawner instead of a tier 5 spawner/soulshard, will net you fewer blazes at a time. Less blazes=less chance of rod drop. Number Two, you said you are using a hopper? I assume you mean the 5 iron,chest, and stone gear recipe to collect the rods? I could be wrong but they seem to need to be fed forcibly either by pipe,tube, or gravity etc, and won't simply "suck up" any dropped rods. Try using a transposer into a tube or pipe system instead. Note: they tend to need a pulsing red stone signal to function in ultimate. You can do this a few ways but the simplest is a redstone tube, cobblestone structure pipe, and an anarchic gate. Set the gate to if no redstone signal, then red stone signal. This provides an infinite redstone pulse. Note: did not work when set to energy pulser and will sometimes stick on reload. Clears up if you either look at the gate gui or simply toggle a red stone signal on and off, such as a lever, or for more complicated master switches I use wireless redstone to toggle multiple gates to ensure all affected redstone pipes start working once I relog or come back from a dimension etc. ...or what layout is shown in the upper right? I can't quite decode the positions at which the glowstones are placed relative to the spawner. I have a working xp grinder based around a blaze spawner in Nether. Now I want to build a wither skeleton grinder, but two most convenient crossings are located practically out the door of the blaze grinder chamber. And of course spawning blazes will completely overwhelm the skeleton spawns. I saw a video with a smart way of toggling the spawner through placing four dispensers with lava buckets on the roof. The four lava streams, when flowing through the spawn area keep it lit enough that no blazes can spawn. But the video glossed over the dispenser locations too, not giving any angles good enough to determine just where they should be. It's almost certainly the layout in the upper right pic, but I really need to be sure - this being survival. I'd rather avoid punching unnecessary holes in a blaze spawner room ceiling. Posted at 16:33h in Uncategorized by 0 Comments Place two signs in the corners and one in the hole. Items can be collected via minecart with hopper running below the floor, or with water leading to hoppers, making the trap fully automatic. Thank you so much for tuning in i hope. Hopefully, mobs should spawn, fall down the pit and survive with half a heart, get pushed towards you by the water current, and get killed by a single hit. The following cactus trap is designed for spiders. This water will flow from one side to another. I would highly recommend aking on alternate accounts overnight, as you often get zombie, skeleton, blaze, and on occasion IG spawners, which you can sell for LARGE amounts of money. Now make a room 17 blocks wide by 9 blocks long and anywhere from 4-7 blocks high, with the spawner being in the rough center and 1-2 blocks above the ground. Making a Minecraft Mob Grinder With a Skeleton/Zombie Mob Spawner in Version 1.5.2: In this tutorial, it will be explained how to build a mob grinder in version 1.5.2 of Minecraft. For this method, you must dig a pit that reaches far under the dungeon. This lets the mobs into the elevator more easily and prevents water spillage from the elevator. This means that with two spawners of the same species near to each other, there will be a zone that mobs will count for both spawners and severely impact the spawn rates. This ShopGUI+ config features a super balanced sugar cane to spawner economy. Mobs and items float in water. ! Cow's with a kick, only these bad boys don't drop steak and leather, and no, we couldn't be so cruel to make them drop stew, though it was a thought :) With HP at 55 and a drop of Gold Ingots, Gold Blocks and red mushrooms, Mooshroom spawners, cross referenced with cows and IG's, boast a better payout if you have an efficient layout than IGs! On the opposite side, make a one-block deep trench extending along the side opposite the water. Minecraft: Easy Mob Spawner/Xp Farm Tutorial 1.8 (For Skyblock, Survival, PvP And More!) Another technique is to leave your player by the dungeon for a couple of hours, overnight is suggested, and there will be at least a hundred monsters waiting to be harvested. You will always want fence gates, in case you want to dash in between spawns to collect drops, or to fix something up. Naturally the rotten meat they drop will remain inside the chamber, but the experience points will hover toward you. They are separated into two categories: the two-block high tall mobs - zombies, skeletons, and blazes - and the one block high short mobs - spiders, cave spiders, and silverfish. I think naturally spawning mob rates should be increased to de-emphasize the use of the spawner kit. The Appeal of skyblock is to grind. 5. However, this only works for skeleton dungeons, as wolves will only automatically target skeletons. This allows the mob to drop items at their feet for your collection. 11:50. Fill in the walls surrounding the farm, except at the front. Alternatively, see Tutorials/Blaze farming for video tutorials. It's recommended to put more vindicators inside the trap. One must be well-prepared to contain this type of spawner, lest they might die from heights, lava, the blazes, or even external mobs. A variant to the classic lava blade, the timed lava dispenser can be used to damage a zombie or skeleton to the point where one hit can kill it, allowing the player to get advanced drops and XP. Make it so you can only see the mobs feet on one side, and on the other use a slab to make it so you can just see the top of its head. Seal the zombie spawner in a 5x5x5 chamber, naturally, you want it to stay in the center of the chamber at the lowest height. Place a water source block on each end of this dug out area and it should stop just before the center. At the moment, I have 2 blaze spawners, 5 cave spider spawners and 1 skeleton spawner. Since the mob is halfway on the block with the fence post, it will be damaged by the lava, but since its feet are still in water, the damage stops exactly at the moment the lava is retracted. A hopper can be used to collect the items into a chest. Lava generates light, which can lower the spawn rate in the dungeon unless placed far away; however the increased turnover of mobs may compensate for this. This is where the water channel is recommended. If done correctly you can slay the mobs and get experience and rare drops from mobs. To suspend the lava, create a 3-long channel then put a sign or ladder on the last block.
