Chrome apk for android 4. 3. 1

(Information source: BigTunaOnline / Shutterstock) While Chrome’s desktop versions included support for grouping tabs for quite some time, Google was slow to bring the same feature to the mobile editions of its browser. But now this is starting to change. The company is in the roll out process two main tab-relative changes in Chrome for Android: grouping tabs and a new display grid of tabs. Although both are enabled by a server-side change activated by Google, you can force the app to give access to new features right now. Until now, the Chrome tab switch – which is accessed by tapping the tab button to the right of the address bar – showed the tabs in a stack. While this is enough space-efficient, it can be difficult to recognize the site in this way. The new grid layout for tabs gives each card much more space and a larger preview to help identify. Change is purely aesthetic, but many people will find that the new layout is also easier to use. But the update brings more than just a redesigned tab switch – there is also the grouping of tabs to exploit. If you open the new tab switch, you can reorganize the order where tabs are displayed by tapping and holding on a tab before dragging it into a new location. You can also group tabs by releasing one tab at the top of the other. Another option is to tap the three-point menu at the top right of the tab switch and select the tabs groups option. You can select the tabs that’ll like to convert to a group. To use the tab groups you created, just tap one of the groups and its content will expand in view. You can then treat individual tabs as normal, touching to visit the site, or tap and hold before you unplug to remove a tab from the group. For some people, these new options are available without the need to do anything, but this is not the case for everyone. The first thing you have to do to make sure you have the update for Chrome 88. Just help on Google Play, check updates, and take the latest version of the browsers. With this fact, you can use the following steps to enable card options. Launch Chrome and pay a visit to chromium://flags/#enable-tab-grid-layout>Select Enabled by the drop-down menuReboot Chrome twiceNote this last step as it is different from normal. Normally it is enough to restart Chrome after changing a setting using flags, but if you do it here you will not see anything new. You need to make sure that the Chrome restart twice for the settings to attack and you can then go ahead enjoying the new features of the Google tab has been busy working on. It is also worth noting that if you are in the group of people for whom the new card options have been enabled by default and you discover that you do not like them, you can use the same flag to turn them off. Just test at the same location and select Disabled from the drop-down menu before restarting Chrome twice. Android Police Way (Image Source:Chrome) Take screenshots of websites might be about to get a lot easier for Android users. Just on all those who took a screengrab of a page will be executed in the irritating problem of not being able to capture everything in one image. Google is currently testing a new screenshot option that eliminates the need to take multiple sockets to capture everything you need. Known as Long Screenshot, the feature will allow you to take sliding screenshots that take in an entire web page. This is something Google has already played with in beta versions of Android 11, but it seems that the company decided that the option is more suitable for Chrome than its mobile operating system. The screenshot slider option tested in beta builds of Android 11 did not do to the final release, but now it seems to have been migrated into the mobile web browser of Google instead. The new capacity will be welcomed by anyone who has been frustrated having too much to take multiple screenshots and sew them together, or who had to resort to using third-party tools. Take it all Even if the experimental flag is not yet available – even in Chrome’s experimental construction for Android – the description gives a good idea of what to expect when Google makes it available in the browser:“Chrome Share Long Screenshots: Allows UI to edit and share long screenshots on Android.” At the moment, the references to the characteristic were identified only in the Chromium and it is impossible to say when – or actually, if – the Long Screenshot option will land on phones for Chrome users to experiment.
